PODRAVKA HISTORY

The history of Podravka dates back to 1934 when the Wolf brothers started processing and selling fruits in Koprivnica, Croatia. At that time, they could not anticipate that their family business will give rise to one of the leading food processing companies of Central, Eastern and South-East Europe.

1934

- 1947 The company started acting under its current name in 1947 when the Wolf brothers' business became a national enterprise.
- 1957 In 1957, Podravka made its first dehydrated soups. Since then, soups constitute an integral part of its product line and at the same time a concept symbolizing first-class quality.
- 1958 One year after making the first soups, in 1958, the team of Podravka experts led by Professor Zlata Bartl developed Vegeta, a meal additive.
- 1967 In 1967, Podravka started exporting Vegeta to the first foreign markets - to Hungary and Russia. Vegeta soon became the most important brand of Podravka and is sold in more than 40 countries of the world today.
- 1972 1972 was another milestone in Group history when Podravka started its activity in another field and entered the pharmaceutical market by founding Belupo Company.
- 1981 In 1981, a new plant for the production of Belupo medicines and cosmetics was built in Danica industrial zone of Koprivnica.
- 1993 In 1993, Podravka became a joint-stock company and in 1998, its shares were integrated into the 1st listing of Zagreb Stock Exchange.
- 1997 In 1997 Podravka made large investments. New production plants for Vegeta and Belupo products were built in Koprivnica and a plant for the production of soups and other dehydrated products were erected in Poland. Additionally, the SAP information system was implemented to interconnect all working processes all over the Group.
- 2002 In 2002, Podravka realized its first two foreign acquisitions - Ita-Ice in Croatia and Lagris in the Czech Republic. In the same year, a strategic connection with Nestlé was created to sell and distribute selected product groups of both companies in South-East European markets.
- 2003 In 2003, Podravka opened a new plant for the production of Vegeta and a year later, another Belupo pharmaceutical plant for the production of semisolid medicines in Koprivnica, with a value of 10 million euro. Podravka has daughter companies and agencies in 17 countries of the world and production capacities in five European countries (Croatia, Slovenia, Poland, Czech Republic and the Slovak Republic).
- 2006 Podravka gained the canned fish products brand Eva.
- 2008 Podravka universal seasoning celebrates its 50th birthday!
- 2010 The products Ajvar mild and Lino Lada have won the prestigious and recognized Superior Taste Award.
- 2013 The Podravka tomatoes with basil and oregano and tomatoes with olive oil and garlic also acquired an international award of taste and quality.
- 2014 Podravka received the Superbrands award for the fourth. The prize is awarded only once a year based on customer preference and the opinion of an expert jury.
- 2015 The products Ajvar mild and Podravka Asia have won the prestigious and recognized Superior Taste Award.
- 2016 The products Ajvar mild, Ajvar hot and Podravka passata awarded the prestigious and recognized Superior Taste Award.
- 2017 In 2017, the Podravka brand celebrated its 70th anniversary and at the same time also 20 years of business activity in the Czech market.
- 2018 Under Podravka brand was introduced new Natur line. Ingredients were updated in Seasoning Natur, Spice Mixtures and Cubes. With composition was changed also the design of products. Natur products contain only sea salt, lots of vegetables, herbs and spices. We modified the recipe to meet the requirements of the modern customer.
- 2019 Under the Podravka brand, you will now also find tomato puree in a tube, which is made from 100% tomatoes and is therefore without added salts and without additives.
- 2020 The Podravka Natur product line has been extended with liquid spices.
- 2021 Dried tomatoes are now included among tomato products under the Podravka brand.
- Podravka is one of the leading food companies in the Middle, East and Southeast Europe with operations in more than 40 countries of the world on five continents.

UNIVERSAL SEASONING

Podravka universal seasoning has become a favourite and irreplaceable classic seasoning in European kitchens long ago. A mixture of multiple high-quality kinds of vegetables and specific herbs whose recipe was developed in 1958 in a research laboratory in Koprivnica, Croatia, provoked a genuine culinary revolution and has been leading the meal additive market for more than half a century.

Podravka universal seasoning ranks among indispensable kitchen helpers. The secret of its success consists in the fact that it does not cover the original aroma or taste of the meal but underlines and complements both of them. One teaspoon per portion provides a genuine experience to the taste buds, completely without effort.

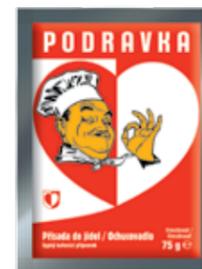

NATUR

Podravka Natura was developed in response to the trend of increasing consumer interest in a healthy lifestyle and healthy and completely natural meals. It perfectly unites the taste of traditional Podravka with current ideas of healthy eating and with demands on a completely natural product.

The absolute innovation among special seasoning is made of completely natural ingredients. It is made of vegetables grown under the sun and does not contain any chemicals or other additives (no „E’s“). It is completely free of sodium glutamate and disodium ionisate. It does not contain any artificial dyes, aromas or preservatives.

New in this category is Podravka Natur liquid seasoning, which will become your indispensable helper in the kitchen. It contains only natural ingredients, sea salt and is glutamate free, without artificial colours or aromas. Great for your soups, sauces, meat or vegetable dishes, fish and salads. You can also use it as part of a meat or fish marinade.

IMPROVED

BOUILLONS

Strong bouillons are almost indispensable helpers in the kitchen. They are made by slow-cooking meat, vegetables or fish together with spices for several hours. A sign of a quality bouillon cube is its brightness.

The name comes from the French word „bouillon“, which is derived from the word „bouillir“- the French the word for cooking.

Podravka bouillons are made from only the finest ingredients. They have a very broad use. They prepare meals easy and you can use them at almost any point during cooking. All you have to do is briefly cook them in the dish.

Podravka bouillons are excellent as a basis for both clear and thick soups or various sauces and gravies. They also help to add flavour to meat juices, steamed vegetables, rice or even pasta, which then taste completely different than if they are made in water alone. They are also suitable for basting meat during various thermal treatments such as baking or stewing. The meat becomes much tastier than if it is only basted with water during the preparation.

AJVAR

Ajvar originates from sunny Croatia and is a purely vegetable side dish made from peppers and eggplant.

Thanks to processing in just three hours from gathering, only vegetables of the highest quality are used in their preparation to guarantee freshness. Ajvar Podravka is free of any preservatives, artificial flavours, colouring agents and is gluten-free. Thanks to its unique composition, it is also suitable for vegetarians and vegans.

Ajvar has multiple uses. It can be used as a side dish for grilled food, baked or boiled meats, frankfurters, sausages and hamburgers. It also acts as a good spread in the preparation of cold or hot sandwiches or as an additive to different vegetable meals, sauces and rich vegetable-meat soups.

Ajvar preparation has a long tradition in the Balkans and the recipe is inherited from one generation to another. Ajvar preparation is bound to peppers season. Ajvar Podravka is only prepared in the Kalnik factory in Croatia once a year from 100% fresh raw vegetables. Pepper production is local, therefore the gathered peppers are transported to the factory within three hours and processed into ajvar. During the preparation, it is necessary to wash the peppers properly, dry them and remove the seeds. The eggplants are baked and the peppers are peeled after they are steamed then both prepared vegetables are then milled.

In the Podravka factory, over 3,000 tons of fresh peppers are processed annually, which were specially grown for ajvar production. This mixture is then zested according to wishes and is cooked for a couple of hours under permanent mixing. Ajvar reaches the right consistency if you can make a deep groove in it with a spoon which doesn't disappear immediately. Prepared ajvar is then sealed in a jar ready for use at any time!

Podravka offers 2 kinds of ajvar in total - mild and hot.

TOMATO PRODUCTS

Podravka tomato products are made of the highest-quality tomatoes grown in the sunny Mediterranean. Carefully selected ingredients guarantee excellent taste, and partial processing ensures easy and fast preparation of meals. Products of this line have got the international award for taste and quality, „Superior Taste Award“.

PASSATA

Passata is obtained by simple scalding and peeling. They suit for the preparation of tomato sauce, for tomato soups, but also as a base for pasta sauce.

CHOPPED TOMATO

Chopped tomatoes with pulpy flesh are used to make this product. Chopped tomatoes suit excellently to prepare sauces for ready-made spaghetti, as well as under meat and fish. They are convenient also for the preparation of pasta salads or lasagne.

TOMATO PASTE IN A TUBE

Tomato paste is made within 24 hours after the tomatoes are harvested and its composition is made only from 100% tomatoes, without added salt, starch or other substances. Thanks to convenient packaging in the form of a tube, there is a possibility to use the tomato paste up to 60 days after opening. Podravka tomato paste will add flavour, pleasant smell and beautiful red colour to your meal. It is perfect for preparing soups, goulash, stewed meat and sauces. Moreover, it has practical packaging.

DRIED TOMATOES

Dried tomatoes are very healthy and contain a lot of beneficial substances. For example, they contain a ten times higher amount of lycopene antioxidant than regular tomatoes. Besides this antioxidant, dried tomatoes are rich in vitamins C, B, E, K and also niacin. Moreover, they do not lose their nutritional value after being dried. Treat yourself with Podravka dried tomatoes marinated in sunflower oil with a pinch of oregano.

WHOLE PEELED TOMATOES

The most ripened tomatoes are used for this product and canned in one piece. Peeled tomatoes suit excellently as a base under meat (particularly beef), for preparation of omelettes or stews.

PASTA

It is said that the cradle of pasta in China and that the instructions for their preparation were brought to Italy by Marco Polo, the famous traveller, from his travels over the Far East in the 13th century. They were noodles made of rice flour.

PENNE

Penne („pennoni“) are broad short hollow tubes with obliquely cut ends. They are made in two variants: „penne lisce“ (smooth) and „penne rifte“ (wrinkled). They are served with sauces like pesto and marinara and they are also often used as the base for pasta salads.

CHIFFERI

Chifferi is small bent tubes, slightly grooved on the surface. They constitute one of the most common shapes of Italian pasta; in our country, they are rather known as small „elbow macaroni“. Chifferi is most frequently used as a side dish, going well with diverse tomato or cream sauces.

FARFALLE

Farfalle has a scalloped or wavy edge and is pressed in the centre (they resemble small butterflies or bows). The name is derived from the Italian „farfalle“ (butterflies).

FUSILLI

Fusilli are long spiral noodles. The word fusilli probably comes from „fusile“, an archaic word for rifles („fucile“ in modern Italian), as they resemble spiral-grooved rifle barrel from inside.

SPAGHETTI

Spaghetti does not need a long presentation - they constitute the most favourite kind of pasta. They are usually thin and can be up to 50 cm long. In our country, they have been known for dozens of years already and enjoy great popularity. The Czech cuisine uses them frequently in connection with minced meat mixed with potatoes and sprinkled with cheese. But they are sometimes also completed with fresh potatoes, herbs or spinach.

COUSCOUS

Couscous is a kind of pasta made of hard-grain wheat (semolina). It is first processed into a powder that is shaped into small balls that are subsequently steamed and dried. It is invaluable in preparation - it does not need any cooking at all. You only have to pour hot water over it and leave it to stand until the liquid is completely absorbed. Couscous is excellent as a main dish and a side dish to meat or vegetable meals and sauces.

TARHONYA

Tarhonya is a type of pasta from standard soft wheat and is a traditional side dish mainly in the regions of Slovakia and eastern Moravia. As well as tarhonyas from other producers, tarhonya from Podravka is produced from 100% semolina and thanks to this, Podravka has created a unique product by combining tradition with the high quality and properties of semolina flour.

FISH PRODUCTS

All Eva sardines are of high quality as we only use sardines caught in the depths of the Adriatic Sea. Thanks to the ideal ratio of saltiness and the temperature of the water, Eva sardines taste delicious and are rich in omega 3 fatty acids, proteins, vitamins and minerals. The regular consumption of fish also helps to maintain a healthy cholesterol level, helps to lower blood pressure and has a preventive effect on heart disease and helps the blood vessels. One very important aspect is the combination of calcium with vitamin D, which is essential for the healthy development of young children and women during menopause.

Eva sardines are completely preservative and another additive free. Enjoy Eva sardines in several delicious variations: in olive and vegetable oil, with lemon, in tomato sauce, in tomato sauce with vegetables and in vegetable oil with hot pepper.

LAGRIS HISTORY

Lagris was founded in 1991 as a family company devoted to trading with and further processing agricultural products in a production plant at Dolní Lhota near Luhačovice. First, they handled fruits and vegetables supplied to the Czech market; later, the product line was extended by rice and legumes that played an essential role in the further life of the company.

- 1993 In 1993, Lagris started supplying packed products to the retail network and extended gradually its line of products. It introduced regularly new products, unknown to the Czech consumer until then - for example special kinds of rice (Basmati, Indian or jasmine rice). It gradually acquired a stable position in the market, becoming one of the largest food processing companies in the Czech Republic.
- 1996 In 1996, Lagris expanded to the Slovak market, founding a daughter company, Lagris Slovakia, s.r.o., that soon acquired a strong position in the Slovak foodstuff market.
- 1998 The year 1998 became a turning point in the development of the company that transformed into a joint-stock company. In that year, it introduced the HACCP system and in 2000, it implemented the ISO 9000 Quality Management System that documents the high level of management of all processes taking place in the company.
- 1999 In 1999, Lagris entered also the catering market and started asserting itself more strongly in other foreign markets.
- 2002 In 2002, Lagris became part of Podravka Group.
- 2005 In 2005, the company changed its business name to Podravka - Lagris, a.s., concluding the process of integration of Lagris under the Podravka Koprivnica mother company.
- 2011 Premium rice Lagris were selected in the competition Consumer Choice as the best innovation and the best packaging of the year.
- 2012 On the fair trade, Sial d'Or has valued pasta in boiling bags. Lagris defends quality management system certificate ISO 9001.
- 2014 Lagris defends quality certificate IFS (International Food Standard) on a high level.
- 2015 Lagris launches new products from a healthy living assortment - mungo and adzuki beans, bulgur and quinoa.
- 2016 Lagris brand received the Superbrands award. The prize is awarded only once a year based on customer preference and the opinion of an expert jury.
- The Lagris brand celebrated 25 years on the Czech market.
- 2017 The following new features were introduced under the Lagris brand to the Czech and Slovak market – carnaroli rice, beluga lentils and French lentils.
- 2019 During the year, the design of the Lagris product range and the overall identity are being redesigned. The new Lagris logo has been given a modern, round shape with elements evoking a leaning towards nature and the year of the foundation of the company at the bottom. The new slogan „With respect to the nature“ introduces our goals materialized in this simple message.
- 2021 In this year, the Lagris brand celebrates the 30th anniversary of entering the Czech market

RICE

Rice ranks among the oldest cultural plants of the world and to the most important cereals from the perspective of human nutrition. About 1200 kinds of rice are grown in the world, and it is the basic food of almost half the population of the Earth.

It was grown in the territory of today's Thailand 4000 years BC already. From there, it expanded to China and further all over Asia. The army of Alexander the Great brought rice to West India and Greece. In the era of Roman Empire, was grown in the Mediterranean as well as in North and South Africa. The European settlers brought rice to America together with their African slaves.

PEELED RICE

Its name captures exactly its character. The grains of the rice called also water rice, have the form of needles, with an exceptional proportion of length and width. Each grain is polished after careful removal of its hull, and thanks to it, long grain rice remains loose after cooking and has quite dry consistency. Similarly to other rice kinds, this one is also naturally free of gluten, easily digestible, with fine typical flavour and aroma. It suits excellently as a side dish, for sauces and for soups to thicken them.

PARBOILED RICE

It is peeled rice processed with special technology. The rice is treated in a vacuum where unpeeled grains pass a process of soaking and processing with high-pressure steam, in which the vitamins and minerals pass from the hull into the grain. The rice grain processed in that way is finally peeled and polished. Parboiled rice is fluffy, loose, it does not stick and overcook. Additionally, the processing enhances its quality and provides it with higher nutritive values than classical white rice has.

DID YOU KNOW THAT ...

The energy value of rice is high, but it is easily digestible. High-quality rice should be cream-white, parboiled rice goldish, and it should have a floury or glassy appearance. Each kind of rice has its own, a little different flavour and aroma, depending on the specific kind and place of origin.

PREMIUM RICE

BASMATI RICE

Basmati is the more widespread kind of rice in the Indian subcontinent. Thanks to its slight nut flavour and unique aroma, local people call it the queen of aromas, which is the actual meaning of the word basmati.

JASMINE RICE

Jasmine rice is the most widespread in Thailand and Asian cuisine in general. Its flavour and aroma are very similar to basmati, but it is stickier. The grains of jasmine rice is white to a golden brown and their fine aroma reminds them of jasmine.

SUSHI RICE

Sushi has its origin in South-East Asia and it was originally the meal of port workers. They were poor and went to work with only some dry rice. When unloading fish, they sometimes cut off a small piece of raw fish they carried over the shoulder, hid it into the rice pressed in their hand, and had a balanced meal.

THREE-COLOUR RICE

Three-colour rice joins parboiled, red and Indian rice, creating a unique combination of aroma, flavour and appearance. The North American wild long-grain rice consists actually of water grass seeds; the red long grain rice represents a special kind of unpeeled rice.

PREMIUM RICE

ARBORIO RICE

Arborio rice found its home in Italy. That medium-grain rice with its soft consistency suits excellently to prepare the genuine Italian risotto. It is distinguished by big grains, white colour and a great amount of starch, thanks to which it absorbs water excellently, without getting overcooked.

CARNAROLI RICE

Carnaroli rice is of the same Italian origin as Arborio rice. Thanks to its high starch content and its light creamy consistency, it is called the “Queen of Italian rice”. You can make an awesome risotto with it or it can be used separately for sauces, salads and other special Italian meals.

PARBOILED AND WILD INDIAN RICE

The mixed rice combines specially processed long grain parboiled and wild Indian rice that consists of seeds of North American water grass. The processing of parboiled rice consists of the use of high pressure, thanks to which the vitamins, minerals and trace substances pass from the hull to the grain.

INDIAN RICE

Indian (or wild) rice consists of water grass seeds and it was originally the basic cereal of the Indians living in the area of Great Lakes at the American-Canadian border. Hungary is an important European manufacturer of that rice.

BROWN RICE

Brown rice is natural, unground and unpolished rice. Thus it is not deprived of high contents of vitamins, minerals and fibres like white rice. Brown rice is straw-coloured to brownish and is naturally gluten-free. It helps to reduce the cholesterol level and, additionally, is rich in potassium regulating the water contents in the human body. Therefore, it ranks among rational nutrition products. It suits excellently for soups, sweet meals, risottos, and naturally also for meat as a side dish.

ROUND GRAIN RICE

This rice has small, round or plump grains. It is also called milk rice. It has a high proportion of starch, thanks to which it absorbs water excellently and is very soft and fluffy after cooking. Thanks to its sticky consistency, it suits excellently to prepare diverse stuffings and fillings, the Spanish paella or small rice cakes. It finds great use also in the preparation of soufflés, puddings, milk rice and other sweet meals. Similarly to other kinds of rice, it is naturally gluten-free and has low contents of cholesterol.

LENTILS

Lentils have been part of the human diet for 4000 years. Small seed lentils probably come from South-East Asia; big seed lentils come from the Mediterranean. Thanks to their nutritive value and high protein contents, lentils soon expanded to all continents.

Lentils deserve their privileged position in our diet and their contribution to health is indisputable. They contain a great number of proteins and essential amino acids; that is why they make an excellent alternative to meat. They are also rich in saccharides and are therefore able to fill up the stomach; they have high contents of group B vitamins, phosphorus, magnesium, calcium, sulphur, iron, potassium and selenium. They also contain enzymes, organic acids and lecithin.

Red lentils make a very favoured legume. Their small red seeds need not be soaked before preparation and are cooked very quickly. They have very diverse use in the kitchen - they can be used as a side dish to meat, to make spreads, salads or soups. They suit to thicken soups, goulash or vegetable meals. They taste excellent, particularly when combined with cereals and vegetables.

The salads stand out perfectly red lentils, which during short boiling will not lose their shape or colour. Yellow lentils are indispensable in Asian cuisine. It is also ideal when used in soup or as the basis of spreads.

Try also fine-grained Beluga lentil and French lentil. These lenses are not needed to soak before cooking, retain their shape and do not bloat. They are naturally gluten-free and are indispensable especially for vegetarians because of the high protein content, fibre and minerals. It is suitable not only for salads but also as a separate side dish or spread.

PEAS

Peeled peas constitute an ingredient with high contents of proteins, a very good source of potassium and vitamin B. The carbohydrate complex contained in peas releases energy gradually. Peas constitute a good source of folate (folic acid) and vitamin K1 that activates osteocalcin so necessary for healthy bones. Peas are also a very good storehouse of iron, necessary for the creation of red blood cells, and vitamin C, protecting against free radicals. In general, peas suit all lovers of a healthy lifestyle. They are also appreciable for children during development.

Peas have been known to people for thousands of years and it is no wonder that it has been grown by ancient Romans. Peas, whether green or yellow, contain plant proteins, fibre, vitamins and minerals. It can partially replace animal proteins, feed and is gluten-free. Yellow peas (especially halved) is better digestible, does not have to be soaked, it is suitable for the preparation of porridge, puree and thick soups. Also popular are green peas, which has a stronger taste compared to yellow. It's ideal to prepare various porridge, puree or soups.

BEANS

Beans come originally from South America. These legumes have been grown and consumed for the longest time ever - the Peruvian Indians knew and grew them more than 10 000 years ago. Beans came to Europe only after some time after the discovery of America. In the 16th century, the Spanish brought them, and in the 17th century, they already ranked among widespread and commonly used foodstuffs. Today, the most important producers include India, Myanmar and China. They should constitute an important part of the diet of each of us due to their high content of vegetable proteins, fibres, vitamins and minerals.

WHITE BEANS (small and big) they are soft after cooking and have a fine taste. They suit ideally for mixed salads, as pastina for soups or as self-standing legume meals.

LIGHT SPECKLED BEANS

ripen in red, brown and black colour. They tolerate savoury spices, therefore they are used particularly in Mexican cuisine. They are ideal for example to prepare chilli con Carne.

PULSES MIXTURE

There are various possibilities for legume use. They can be prepared as a side dish or a main course, they are appropriate for salads, soups mashes, spreads and many consumers eat them in a germinated form. The majority of legumes are soaked before cooking to soften, swell up and so reduce the cooking time. The rule for all legumes is to only add salt when they are nearly ready.

LEGUME RACIO MIX

HEALTHY NUTRITION PRODUCTS

BUCKWHEAT

Buckwheat is an annual plant with a short vegetation period. Only 70 to 80 days pass from sowing to harvest. The flowers are white or white-pink, sometimes red. Its seeds are triangular, of brown or dark purple colour.

MILLET GRAINS

Peeled millet grains rank among cereals. Millet is rich in silicic acid, vitamins B1, B2 and PP and, additionally to fat and iron, contain valuable proteins.

SOYA BEANS

This leguminous plant comes from Eastern Asia and has been grown as a cultural plant for more than 4 000 years. But it remained virtually unknown in Europe until the 20th century, despite its indisputable nutritive value.

CHICKPEAS

Chickpeas, called also „Roman peas“, rank among legumes. The origin of the small angular seeds of yellowish colour, with slight nut flavour, can be found in Asia and India. Today, they are grown all over South Europe, America and Australia.

BULGUR

Bulgur is precooked grains from crumbled whole-grain wheat. Bulgur is easily digestible, it contains a huge amount of roughage, vitamins and minerals. It has a slightly nutty flavour. It is an integral part of recipes for tabbouleh, pilaf or falafel. It is also used in patties, stuffing or to thicken soups or vegetable salads.

POPPY SEEDS

Poppy as a foodstuff has been grown since the ninth century particularly by Slavic nations. It has been traditionally used also in Turkish and Jewish cuisine. At present, the poppy is grown the most in Turkey, but the Czech Republic ranks among its important world producers. Poppy seeds contain up to 60 % of oil, proteins and trace elements.

SALT

We can find mentions of salt in antiquity, in Arabic, Greek or Hebrew literature. It was traditionally called also „white gold“, as it was used as currency in ancient times. Wealth was always related to salt in history. Livius Solicitor, a Roman consul, became famous for having covered the expenses for the Second Punic War with Carthago thanks to salt taxes. The Kelts, Byzantium and Venice became rich from the salt trade.

POTATOES

Potatoes rank among the oldest cultural plants. Their origin dates back to South America, to a period 8 000 years ago. Their discovery meant an actual revolution for Europe. The first potatoes were brought from Peru and Bolivia to Europe by the Spanish in the mid-16th century, like exotic flowers. Their flowers were violet, the potatoes had red jackets and a roll-like shape. The Europeans first grew them as a decorative plant with healing power.

By the end of the 16th century, the English brought Chilean potatoes to Europe. They had white flowers, light jackets and a round shape and we can consider them the predecessors of the European potatoes. But the potatoes of that time were small, bitter and contained substances or unpleasant taste that disappeared only during four hundred years of improvement.

Until the mid-17th century, potatoes could be seen only on the tables of rich people as selected delicacy. But at that time, a bad climate prevailed in Ireland and agricultural produce did not thrive - only potatoes in monastery gardens succeeded to survive the bad years. The monks offered them to people, saving them from famine.

In the course of the next hundred years approximately, famine rose in continental Europe too, and potatoes found way to our tables too.
